

History & Spiritual Approach of the Marngok Tradition

Cécile Ducher

The Marngok Kagyü Tradition

Mar = Marpa Lotsawa Chökyi Lodrö (1000-1085)

Ngok = Marpa's disciple Ngok Chöku Dorjé and his family lineage

Kagyü

- In general, the “Oral (bka') Transmission (brgyud)”
- In particular, the kabab zhiyi gyüpa, the “lineage of the four currents” = the various transmissions that Naropa received from Tilopa

→ Lineage descending from Tilopa and Naropa to Marpa and continuing to transmit their teachings in the family lineage of Ngok Chodor

Spends 20 years in India, and is famous for bringing back to Tibet many key instructions on practice of the highest yoga tantras

Disciple of the famous Indian masters Nāropa and Maitripa

Founder of the Kagyü lineage

Marpa's masters

In general, Marpa had 108 gurus in India.

There were fifty exegetical tradition holders, and thirteen who were definite changers of appearance.

In particular, there were four noble gurus: Nāropa, Maitripa, Śāntibhadra and Jñānagarbha.

Among them all, two were unrivalled:
Nāropa and Maitripa.

Flourishing of Kagyü lineages after Gampopa (1079-1153)
and Pagmo Drupa Dorjé Gyalpo (1110-1170) – 4 primary, 8 secondary

Four primary Kagyü lineage

- Karma Kagyü (Karmapa Düsum Khyenpa)
- Pagdru Kagyü (Pagmo Drupa)
- Tsalpa Kagyü (Lama Zhang)
- Barom Kagyü (Barom Darma
Wangchuk)

Eight secondary Kagyü lineages

- Drikung (Jikten Sumgön)
- Drukpa
- Taklung
- Yabzang
- Tropu
- Shukseb
- Yelpa
- Martsang

Marpa's main teachings

Marpa transmitted in Tibet cycles associated with the Highest Yogatantras (Skt. niruttaratanas)

- Hevajra, (mandalas of Hevajra, Nairātmyā, Vajrapañjara) / Sepo
- Guhyasamāja / Pañcakrama
- Mahāmāyā,
- Catuṣpīṭha
- Düsölma, etc.

Well-known for the potency of his key-instructions related to the perfection phase of these tantras (Tummo, Illusory Body, Dream Yoga, etc.), known as the Six Doctrines of Nāropa (nā ro chos drug) in the Dhagpo Kagyü lineages, and Sepo in the Marngok lineage

The Ngok Family: Holders of the Explanation Lineage

Ngok Chödor (1023-1090)

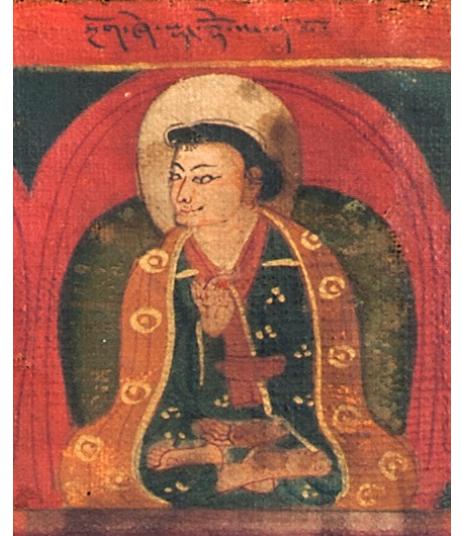

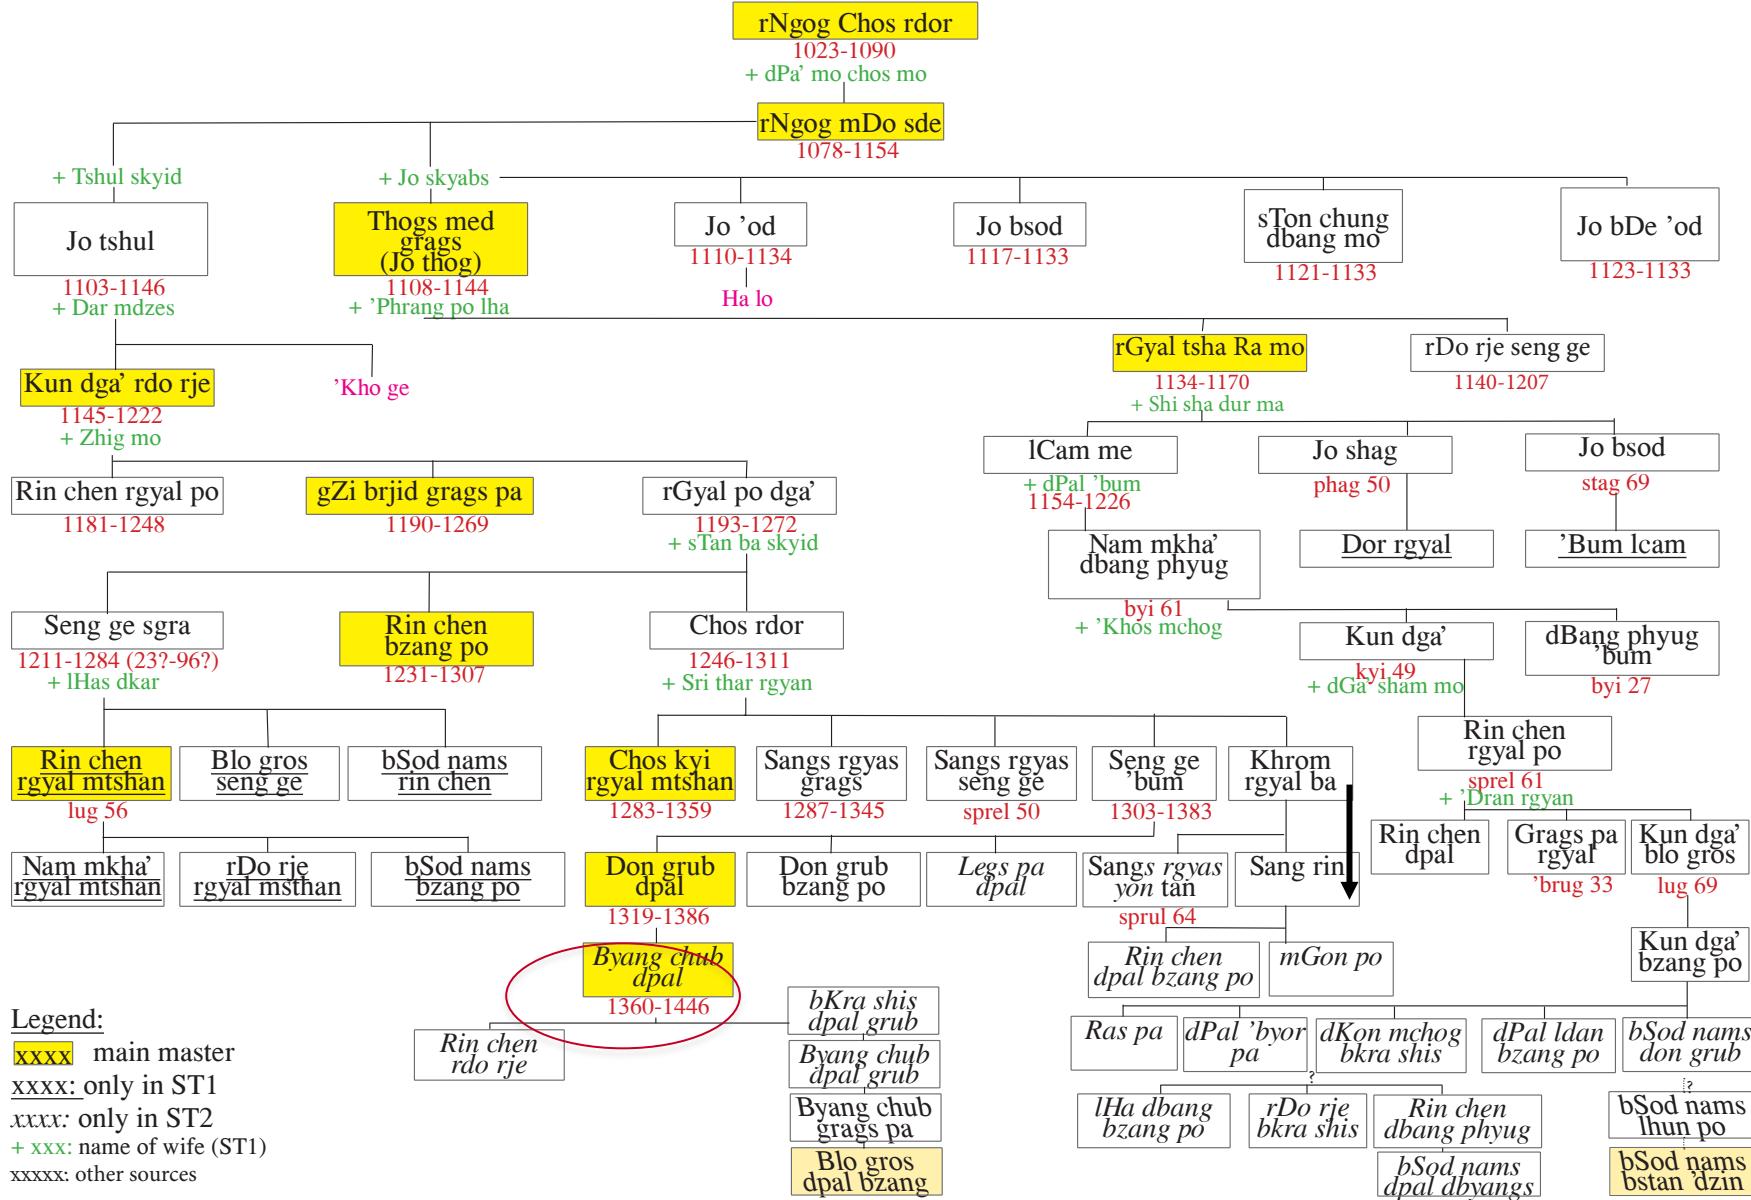

- Coming from an ancient family tracing back to the Tibetan Empire
- Receives at length Marpa's tantric explanations and transmissions
- Importance of the Hevajratantra
- Nairātmyā as a yidam
- Follows the style of Marpa as a lay practitioner
- Often known because he taught Milarepa when Marpa did not give him any teaching

The Ngok Family: Holders of the Explanation Lineage

Ngok Dodé (Zhedang Dorjé, 1078-1154)

- Prolific and learned writer: source of the “Ngok Tradition;” wrote on all mandalas of the lineage
- Gathered Marpa’s relics and established his lineage as the continuity of Marpa’s, equal to Gampopa and Rechungpa
- Greatest proponent of Marpa’s tantric legacy in the 12th c.
- Six children that died young, but Ngok Dodé had a long life
- His grandson, Kunga Dorje (1145-1222), founded Treuzhing in the end of the 12th century: Main Ngok seat and pilgrimage place related to Marpa the name of the masters after Byang chub dpal are found for ex in dGa' ston, 779, in Kun dga' grol mchog rnam thar. For the rGyal tsha side, see Tshar chen.

The Ngok Family: Holders of the Explanation Lineage

Ngok Jangchub Pal (1360-1446)

- The “Seventh of the Ngoks” (symbolic number); also considered the “last of the Ngoks;”
- Holder and reviver of the “Seven Ngok Mandalas” which he taught extensively in his seat of Treuzhing.
- Many disciples: Tsongkhapa, Gö Lotsawa, Lochen Sonam Gyatso, 2d Drukchen...
- Last important Ngok family master, spread the teaching to many important masters and political leaders.

The Drikung Lineage & the Kagyü Ngak Dzö

Reviving a Tradition in the 21st c.: the efforts of Chetsang Rinpoche to revive near-extinct practices

- 1642: Gushri Khan invades Central Tibet; Beginning of the Ganden Podrang rule of the 5th Dalai Lama
- Many libraries with close links to the Ngok / Drikung Kagyü / Karma Kagyü lineages are seized and their assets stored in the Nechu Lhakang Temple of Drepung Monastery.
- When the Kagyü Ngakdzö was compiled in the 19th c., these texts were not available.
- The temple was opened in the late 20th / early 21st c. and the volumes republished.

The Gyalwang Drikungpa Chetsang Rinpoche's efforts to receive, compile and revive Marpa's traditions

- Publications (150 volumes of Drikung Kagyü Chödzö Chenmo, 3-volume Marpa Sungbum...)
- Composition in Tibetan of a volume of sādhanas on Hevajra and Nairātmyā according to Marpa's tradition
- Composition of commentaries and teachings on various aspects of Marpa's tradition (root tantra, commentaries...)
- Establishment of Hevajra and Nairātmyā drupchen around the world, in Tibetan and in English
- Translation of the ritual texts and commentaries in English and in other languages
- Support for the practice of Hevajra and Nairātmyā in various forms
- Several projects to also revive the other mandalas coming from Marpa; a Guhyasamāja drupchen is also now taking place in Jangchub Ling and practice of the other mandalas is planned

The “new” manuscript

Late 2023: revision work based on two Nairātmyā sādhanas by Ngok Zhedang Dorjé and by a Ngok disciple called Jampal & on later sādhanas by the 4th Shamar (1453–1524) and Jamgön Kongtrul Lodrö Thayé (1813–1899)

Several Questions arose to clarify differences between the Hevajra sādhana, the existing Nairātmyā sādhana by His Holiness, the Marpa Dojar, and the various Nairātmyā sādhanas.

March 2024: His Holiness Chetsang Rinpoche instructed Cécile to translate the sādhana by Ngok Zhedang Dorjé

The Nairātmyā Sādhana by Ngok Zhedang Dorjé

- Manuscript from the 16th c. gathering central practices of the Marngok tradition
- Hevajra sādhana based on a sādhana by Ngok Zhedang Dorjé closely related to the Marpa Dojar.

Features:

- Very clear structure: Kyerim in 16 parts, recitation, dzokrim
- Close relation to the Hevajra sādhana that contains a torma ritual and the Kolairitta, said to be applying to both texts
- Very high reliability for Sanskrit mantras
- Proximity to the Marpa Dojar
- Proximity to the Hevajratantra & Vajrapañjara commentaries
- Long praise by Ngok Chödor
- Verses of Auspiciousness
